

Workshop on Air Transport and Regional Development

Poznań | 2018 (6th – 7th September)

Venue:

Poznań University of Economics and Business, Campus A
Niepodległości 10, Poznań, Poland

About the Workshop

Workshop on Air Transport and Regional Development is titled The impact on economy of hub airports operation and infrastructure development. The topic is related with the new central airport for Poland to be built in the next five years and closure of Warsaw Airport, which is close to its capacity and struggles with negative environmental effects. The new central airport is intended to become hub for Central and Eastern Europe. This issue is contribution to the discussion about hubs in Central and Eastern Europe and their impact on regional development.

About COST ATARD

Air transport is generally considered to be a key factor for the economic competitiveness of the most developed regions of a country and for the social welfare of the less developed ones, which often are remote regions difficult to access through other transport modes. However, the relationship between air transport and regional development has not been fully investigated considering all the relevant dimensions. Building advanced knowledge about such relationships, with a focus on Europe, is the main reason for this COST Action.

More details on the action can be found at <http://www.atard.net/>.

About Poznań

Poznań, with over half-a-million residents, is situated in the most economically developed region of Poland, closer to Berlin than to Warsaw. It is best known for its renaissance Old Town and Ostrów Tumski Cathedral, where the history of Poland started. Today, Poznań is an important cultural, business and education (about 140,000 students) centre with many regional customs such as traditional Saint Martin's croissants and a local dialect.

Poznań is very busy International Trade Fair center, so participants are encouraged to book hotel in advance.
